IT'S SILO YEAR Buy Yours Now

The man who owns a silo is the man who is going to make money feeding this year. And—unless all present indications fail—he is the only man who will realize any profit, too. Corn and hay will be too high to feed profitably.

Champion Silos

will make their owners' profit enough to pay for them this season. They combine all the good features of all types—meet every silo requirement. Preserve ensilage perfectly—no waste from spoilage. Built of oil-filled steel, guaranteed rust-proof 50 years. Anchored securely to the foundation—will not twist, vibrate or creep and will not collapse.

Call and inspect the Champion—the biggest silo value on the market. We're glad to talk silo any time and we want you to see the Ross Ensilage Cutters, too. Come in any time.

Elery Zimmerman,
Glen Allen, Mo.

There is to be a stock sale in Marble Hill on the 5th day of February—be sure to keep the date—and if you have any kind of stock you want to dispose of or show, bring it in.

Miss Stella Dunn of Marble Hill, Mo., is teaching a very successful term of school in district No. 49, known as the Brushy school near Minnith in Saline township.—The (Ste. Genevieve) Democrat.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bess were in the vicinity of Lodge Monday visiting Mrs. Bess' father, M. B. Minter, who has been in rather poor health for some time. Mr. Minter is one of our county's staunch citizens and we sincerely hope that he will soon have his former good health.

Aged Citizen Passes Away.
George W. Barks, who resided a few miles north of town, passed away the night of January 24, aged about 76 years. Mr. Barks had suffered several strokes of paralysis during the last few years and had been in feeble health some time.

Mr. Barks was an industrious, quiet citizen, who had few, if any, enemies and many friends. He was a conscientious Christian whose integrity was unquestioned. He leaves a number of sons and daughters and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his departure.

His remains were interred in Cedar Branch cemetery Wednesday in the presence of a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends.

A proper obituary will doubtless appear in due time.

Baptist Church

REV. GED. W. GRAHAM, PASTOR.

Congregations much better last Sunday. With the breaking up of the bad weather, we are hoping for a more enthusiastic enlistment from all the membership than ever.

Next Sunday the church will ordain three new deacons. This will be a special service and all our friends are most cordially invited to be present. Rev. J. P. Scruggs of Fredericktown will be present and preach the ordination sermon.

In the afternoon, promptly at two o'clock, the canvassing committee appointed by the church will assemble at the church and after a season of prayer will make their pledges for the current year and then, two by two, will visit every member of the church during the afternoon and ask them to make a definite pledge for the Lord's work during the coming year.

In the evening the committee will report and the service will be one of prayer and praise and testimony.

Rev. F. W. Matthews, pastor of the M. E. Church South, in Lutesville, made this office a pleasant call Wednesday morning.

M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH

REV. C. R. BAKER, PASTOR.

The pastor filled the regular appointments at Hickory Grove Saturday night and Sunday at 11 and 7. There are a great many people in that neighborhood who have grip.

Our congregations are not near so large as usual, but the interest seems good, and we think as soon as the people can get out again our work will make progress.

Preaching at Hahn chapel next Sunday at 11. We hope to see a large attendance at Sunday school there. Bro. Lee Crader is trying to build up a large and efficient Sunday school and needs your help and cooperation.

We will hold our second quarterly conference at Hahn chapel Saturday night, February 19. Presiding Elder Crowe will preach Saturday night and Sunday night and Sunday at 11.

Made Profit of $32.31 on One Acre of Corn.

With a profit of $32.31 an acre Oscar Linhart of Scott county won the championship among corn club boys of Missouri according to results recently announced by George W. Reavis, superintendent of boys' and girls' club work in the University of Missouri at Columbia. The yield of the acre making the largest profit was 118 bushels and 11 pounds. A sample of the corn was on exhibit at Farmers' Week. The net profit is counted in the championship contest rather than the highest yield.

Oscar Linhart enrolled as a member of the boys' corn club under the direction of the agricultural extension service of the University of Missouri last spring. He received instruction in selecting, planting and cultivating the corn from the University and the county agent of Scott county. He made regular reports of his work and the condition of his corn.

His last report showed that the cultivation of the acre had cost $38.57. Here are the figures: Seed, 50 cents; work done in cultivation, $7; fertilizer, $5.25; rent on land (the usual rent in that county is one-third of the crop, $23.52. The product at 60 cents a bushel was worth $70.88.

Every contestant is required to tell how he raised his crop. Here is the way Oscar tells of his: "I picked out good seed, with the help of the county agent, from a good yield last year. I plowed the land, a rich bottom, in the fall to let the stalks decay. In the spring I plowed it again seven inches deep. In April I double disked it both ways, double harrowed and dragged it. The corn was planted in rows 3 feet 8 inches apart, stalks standing 12 inches apart in rows.

"The first cultivation was deep with a two-horse cultivator. Other cultivations were not so deep, the last one being with a five-shovel, one-horse plow. Before the last two cultivations, I applied 125 pounds of commercial fertilizer, spreading it in the middle of the rows. I worked over the field once with a hoe to cut all the weeds that the plow had failed to kill."
